Western Java Birding Trip Report

16-22 May 2011

Peter Waanders

Javan Trogon, Gunung Gede NP, 17 May 2011 (c) P Waanders 2011

Introduction

This report covers a week's birding trip to western Java (Indonesia) in May 2011. The trip was organised by local guide Indra Ferdinand and was timed to coincide with the start of the dry season. The weather during the trip was mostly dry and pleasant (in the mountains) to hot (on the plains) with occasional showers. Species names in this report follow IOC. A total of 140 species were recorded, of which 56 were lifers for me. Click here for my Picasa album with 100 photos of this trip. Southern Birding Services runs scheduled and custom-made bird tours in Australia and can arrange tours to South-east Asia - visit our website.

Notes on the visited areas

Gede Pangrango National Park

The slopes of the twin mountains (ex-volcanoes) of Gunung Gede (2,985 m) and Gunung Pangrango (3,019 m) are covered in tropical rain forest, starting at the Cibodas Botanical Gardens at about 1200m asl. There are few tracks; the main track to the summit goes past the Cibereum Waterfalls (3.5 km distance) and the Air Panas hot springs (6 km distance). About 263 bird species have been recorded in this national park including endemics such as Javan Hawk eagle, Javan Tesia, Spotted Crocias, Javan Trogon, Javan Cochoa, Yellow-throated Hanging-parrot. The jungle is dense and patience is required to obtain (good) views of the birds.

The Cibodas Botanical Gardens are also good for birding and so is the neighbouring golf course and farm plots. Some of the birds seen here include Javan Kingfisher, Javan Hawk-Eagle, Spotted Kestrel and (in the evening) a Javan Scops-Owl and and a Salvadori's Nightjar.

Caritas Forest Reserve is a lowland rainforest close to the beach resort town of Caritas, about 3-4 hours drive from Jakarta. The main birding is along a 3.5 km long trail that leads to a waterfall. The forest is mixed production and unspoilt lowland tropical forest. The forest is a bit more open than at Gunung Gede. Target species here include Banded Pitta, Black-banded Barbet, Scaly-crowned Babbler, Grey-cheeked Tit-Babbler, Black-capped Babbler, Sunda Woodpecker and in the evening Javan (Barred) Owlets and Sunda Scops Owl.

Pulau Dua near the town of Serang is a small protected mangrove forest close to the coast, remnant of what used to be a much larger mangrove separated from the mainland by tidal mudflats. The mudflats have been converted to fish and shrimp ponds separated by levee banks that can be walked upon. The ponds are good for Glossy Ibis, Javan Pond-heron, Javan Plover, Sunda Teal, Small Blue Kingfisher, Javan Munia, White-headed Munia etc. Streaked Weaver breeds in some of the trees in between the ponds. Many of the swiftlets that fly around here come from the swiftlet towers in Serang and are Mossy-nest Swiftlets. At the mangrove forest itself Javan White-eye has been reported and it also holds Pied Fantail, Golden-bellied Gerygone etc.

Muara Angke is a small, protected mangrove forest in Jakarta. It is a quiet haven surrounded by busy streets and roads and suburbs. It is a well-known site for Sunda Coucal; Sunda Pygmy Woodpecker can also be seen here. There is also a wetland here that used to hold Sunda Teal but has recently become completely overgrown with Water Hyacinth. There are Oriental Darter roosting in the trees here and Black-crowned Night-heron, Yellow Bittern, Purple Heron, Grey Heron, White-browed Crake, Pied Fantail and many other species. The site is accessible by means of a boardwalk that leads through the mangrove forest and around the edge of the wetland.

Logistics

Logistics were handled by Indra Ferdinand and his friend Panca of IF-EcoAdventures. All travel, accommodation arrangements and meals were taken care of very well and Indra is an excellent guide who knows the sites, the birds and their behaviour. If you weren't limited for time it would be quite possible to undertake this trip or a variation thereof by yourself by using public transport and/or chauffeur-driven hire vehicles. But I found the knowledge of a local guide to be invaluable in maximising birding time within a limited period of time, as well as recognizing the calls of many of the (to me) unfamiliar bird species and knowing their recent where-abouts.

Daily account

Monday 16 May 2011

Early morning arrival at Jakarta airport. Transfer to Cibodas (3 hrs drive). At the Puncak pass a Black Eagle flew overhead. The rest of the daylight hours were spent birding at Gunung Gede; we went as far as the waterfall. Around lunchtime it started raining lightly. This turned into a downpour but fortunately we found a shelter. It kept raining on and off until we got to the waterfall. Here we waited until it stopped and on the way back it was dry. At the boardwalk Javan Leaf-monkeys, and further down Ebony Leaf-monkeys were present. The night was spent at Freddy's Homestay in Cibodas.

Highlights of the day: 45 species (15 lifers) including Flame-fronted Barbet, Grey-cheeked Bulbul, Javan Whistling-thrush, Lesser Shortwing, Javan Tesia, Mountain Leaf-warbler, Sunda Warbler, Indigo Flycatcher, Rufous-tailed Fantail, Pygmy Wren-babbler, Chestnut-fronted Shrike-babbler, Javan Fulvetta, Pygmy Tit, Ruby-cheeked Sunbird, White-flanked Sunbird, Javan Grey-throated White-eye...

Tuesday 17 May 2011

An early start for what was going to be a full day birding up Gunung Gede. While it was still dark we birded the first few 100 metres of the forest trail and heard a Javan (Barred) Owlet. A Javan Frogmouth took some convincing to show itself, while a Salvadori's Nightjar showed up on cue in the Botanical Gardens. Unfortunately, Sunda Thrush didn't show. We proceeded up the mountain trail, birding the mainly dense rainforest along the way, until we got to the hot springs at 6 km. One of the main targets, Javan Cochoa, was heard a number of times but only after considerable effort did we see two flying across from one tree to the next. Nearby, a beautiful Javan Trogon showed very well. On the way back 4 Spotted Crocias showed well at the boardwalk. We spent the night again at Freddy's homestay in Cibodas.

Highlights of the day: 36 species (19 lifers) including Changeable Hawk-Eagle, Javan Frogmouth, Salvadori's Nightjar, Javan Trogon, Fire-tufted Barbet, Brown-throated Barbet, Sunda Minivet, Orange-spotted Bulbul, Sunda Bulbul, Javan Whistling-thrush, Sunda (Blue) Robin, Sunda Forktail, Javan Cochoa, Rufous-fronted Laughingthrush, Horsfield's Babbler, White-bibbed Babbler, Spotted Crocias...

Wednesday 18 May 2011

We got up early again for another chance of Sunda Thrush and to try again to see Javan (Barred) Owlet, but didn't succeed. We then spent time exploring the beautiful Cibodas Botanical Gardens, where Javan Kingfisher showed well, as did Blood-breasted Flowerpecker. A pair of Yellow-throated Hanging-parrots flew by, allowing better views than the first day. At the Cibodas Golf Course a pair of Spotted Kestrel was present near their nest site and after some waiting a Javan Hawk-eagle came flying past. A swamp near the farm plots yielded Striated Grassbird. Around lunch-time it started raining but mid-afternoon it cleared up again, allowing time for a visit to the Gunung Mas tea plantation, where Sunda Bush-warbler skulked around in the bamboo but eventually showed itself well. After dark the Botanical Gardens were once again visited; while still no views of Javan (Barred) Owlet, this did result in a brief but good view of a Javan Scops-owl. A flying squirrel was seen gliding from a very tall tree to another one some 60-80 m away.

Highlights of the day: 26 species (7 lifers) including Black Eagle, Javan Hawk-Eagle, Spotted Kestrel, Yellow-throated Hanging-parrot, Javan Scops-Owl, Javan Kingfisher, Sunda Bush-warbler, Striated Grassbird, Blood-breasted Flowerpecker, Tawny-breasted Parrotfinch ...

Thursday 19 May 2011

Another early morning start as we drove to Jakarta (3 hours) to visit the Maura Angke mangrove reserve. The main target here was Sunda Coucal, which unfortunately didn't show. There was a good variety of waterbirds around as well as Pied Fantail and a Blue-eared and Small Blue Kingfisher on one branch! We then continued past Jakarta to Caritas (another 4 hours). After checking in at the Sunset View Hotel we commenced birding the forest trail which leads off into the hills from the main road just a short distance south of the hotel. We got caught in a torrential downpour with heavy thunder and lightning directly overhead, but fortunately a palm-leaf shelter along the trail kept us dry. As the rain didn't let up a vehicle pick up was arranged which proved a good move: on the way down a Banded Pitta showed itself beautifully in front of the car.

Highlights of the day: 33 species (5 lifers) including: Javan Pond-Heron, Black-crowned Night-Heron, Yellow Bittern, Pied Triller, Black-naped Fruit-Dove, Blue-eared Kingfisher, Fulvous-breasted Woodpecker, Banded Pitta, Pied Fantail, Black-capped Babbler, Golden-bellied Gerygone, Scarlet-headed Flowerpecker, Black-winged Starling, Javan & White-headed Munia...

Friday 20 May 2011

Another early start as we drove partway up the forest trail (seeing another Banded Pitta on the way) and walked the rest of the way to the waterfall. A White-bellied Sea-eagle was regularly flying to and from the same area of trees and eventually we found its nest. Good views of Sunda

Woodpecker were had and much to Indra's surprise two Rhinoceros Hornbills flew in, landed noisily in a tree and flew off again. After some effort a Black-banded Barbet was seen. Black-capped Babblers were seen a number of times as was the beautiful Scarlet Sunbird. We returned to the forest in the evening and saw 2 Sunda Scops-owls.

Highlights of the day: 30 species (5 lifers) including Black Eagle, Sunda Scops-Owl, Javan (Barred) Owlet, Rhinoceros Hornbill, Black-banded Barbet, Sunda Woodpecker, Banded Pitta, Black-winged Flycatcher-shrike, Grey-cheeked Bulbul, Blue-winged Leafbird, Brown Prinia, Black-capped Babbler, Grey-cheeked Tit-babbler, Velvet-fronted Nuthatch, Scarlet Sunbird ...

Saturday 21 May 2011

An even earlier start this morning (4:15am) to beat the traffic on the way to Pulau Dua. The drive still took 3 hours. When we got to the site the temperature was quite agreeable, but this changed over the next few hours. We walked around the shrimp/fish ponds looking for Javan Plover (at least 10 seen), Sunda Teal (none) and Small Blue Kingfisher (several) and by the time we got to the mangroves it had become very hot and humid. After cooling down a bit in the shade of the mangrove trees we continued walking around the ponds until about 10:30am. As we sat down on a grassy spot underneath a shady tree, I said "where are these bl***y teal?!" and sure enough within seconds two Sunda Teal flew past and landed on the water in front of us. I'll have to try that trick more often! A farmer lit fires in the vegetation on the levee banks and threw stones at the various birds in the water after which the Teal took off again. Many of the swiftlets that fly around here come from the swiftlet towers in Serang and are Mossy-nest Swiftlets. We then drove to Jakarta, had a late lunch there, and after much driving around found a hotel for the night.

Highlights of the day: 24 species (3 lifers), including: Glossy Ibis, Sunda Teal, Javan Plover, Island Collared-Dove, Savanna Nightjar, Mossy-nest Swiftlet, Small Blue Kingfisher, Pied Fantail, Golden-bellied Gerygone, Streaked Weaver, White-headed Munia...

Sunday 22 May 2011

We spent the morning at Maura Angke again in search of Sunda Coucal. We arrived there at 6am and Indra said 'at this time of the morning Sunda Coucal prefers the trees' so we waited around on the boardwalk in the mangrove trees for a while until I went for a walk and sure enough, once I entered the open area a Sunda Coucal flew up from the vegetation there and away over some shrubs. A subsequent search failed to relocate the bird. The next few hours we observed the wetland from the boardwalk and saw, amongst other things, a photographable Fulvous-breasted Woodpecker and an immature Ruddy-breasted Cuckoo. We spent some time photographing the Edible-nest Swiftlets that were flying around here, with limited success. Late morning we left the site and after some coffee and refreshments went to the airport where the trip finished.

Highlights of the day: 25 species (1 lifer), including: Black-Crowned Night-heron, White-browed Crane, Rusty-breasted Cuckoo, Sunda Coucal, Fulvous-breasted Woodpecker, Javan Myna...
